Affluent Insights™ 2015 Luxury Study

Female Luxury Consumer Report Summary

Overall, female consumers are bigger spenders on luxury than their male counterparts, representing roughly 60% of the global market for luxury goods. This is why in this report we focus exclusively on the female luxury consumer, who dominates many categories, including leather goods, makeup, skin care, fragrances, and ready to wear clothing. While male consumer are increasing their spend across luxury categories, female consumers are becoming responsible for a bigger share of sales also in luxury watches, which used to be a category dominated by males.
